FLIGHT DISPATCH PROGRAMME

The Airline Dispatcher also known as Flight Dispatcher or flight operations officer is one of the best paid and exciting jobs in the aviation industry. Every airline requires aircraft dispatchers just as much as pilots for flight operations. With an Aircraft Dispatcher Certificate, the career opportunities open up worldwide! Upon graduation from Flight School and acquiring your Aircraft Dispatcher Certificate, you will be ready to work in an airline, sharing command decisions with an airline captain.

Some of the responsibilities and job description of a Flight Dispatcher are

- Responsible for planning and monitoring the progress of a flight journey
- Dispatcher is legally responsible for the safety of a flight along with the pilot in command
- Has the authority to delay, divert or cancel a flight
- Most commercial operations require both the flight dispatcher and pilot in command combined to authorize and release a flight
- A flight dispatcher is required to demonstrate extensive knowledge of aviation comparable to the Captain of an aircraft holding an Airline Transport Pilot License, which is the highest pilot license achievable.

MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS

- Minimum educational qualification is a 12th standard or equivalent.
- Be able to read, speak, write and understand the English language fluently.

Course Description

The Aircraft /Flight Dispatcher course contains the same syllabus and subjects covered in the Airline Transport Pilot License (ATPL). One must keep in mind when pilots train they have over 2 years from the commencement of flight training to achieving an ATPL. Whereas, all this theory is compressed into a course with 3 months duration. This course has a steep learning curve from start to finish and requires dedication and commitment for course completion.

ABOUT US

Most people dream about pursuing an education abroad. The desire to travel is always strong whether it's the fascination to study advanced courses, learn about sophisticated technologies or make an avenue for a great career. However, many students face various difficulties while planning a career. They usually choose a path with the intent to work in the field of their study. It's only towards the completion of the course, the reality, that there are few to nil jobs available, smacks them hard. A few of the students hesitantly agree to further study abroad but end up hitting rock bottom. This is mainly because they do not know how to choose the right path nor have a trustworthy source to guide them in the right direction.

At Elevate consultancy, we believe that we would be able to help prospective students to achieve their dreams. From our personal experience and understanding of the job market, we will be able to suggest the right courses based on the individual's interest, post-study perspective and financial strength to pursue higher studies.
